Sunday

My own darling Wifie:-

To-day is Sunday and feel sofar, fit as a top, but I fear the rest of the day as I won't be in the office, but will be walking around all day, anyway, I have this consolation, I can think of you all day long. If it weren't for that I don't know what I would do.

I didn't feel like getting up this morning, I had such a pleasant dream. I dreamt that you were here, had a nice, cosy little home, and what not, when I suddenly awoke & found myself still in my uncle's "palatial" residence.

I spoke to my uncle last night about your dad and this is what he offers: If your dad is a good ladies' tailor, my uncle will give him a position for all the year round, at a good salary and assures him that he will have all the work he wants, but if he is not a ladies tailor, but a good mens tailor, then my uncle guarantees to get him a job that he could make such money as he never dreamed of. My uncle asked me to write about this as he is very anxious to have your dad here, before anyone else, so please present this offer and let me know accordingly. But, whatever is done, I don't want to have your dad to think it is my fault if things don't turn out as well as I think they will, for I only fulfilled my promise to your dad, as I had once assured him that if I saw a chance for him to make a nice living here, I would let him know. Please let me have an answer to this as soon as possible.

Tootsie, that negro didn't show up last night, with the $5.00, so I think he will either call to see me to-morrow, or else he busted out. My uncle met that negress you asked about and she said she would call him up Monday or Tuesday & make arrangements to meet me at home and then I'll get some money. You can readily see, though, that I am getting business. So long as my name is going around, that's all I want, and the thought that people are talking about me, makes me feel happy. As the doctor said, it's bound to come, but it takes time. It can't come any too soon for me, I assure you.

I just reread your last letter in which you say your foot bothers you when you have a busy day. Believe me, honey, I'm worried, and I can assure you that the time is very for distant, I hope, that you will be here and take care of your darling, precious self, and your dear little foot. Oh, sweetheart, I sure do wish you were here now. Won't we be happy together. I can assure you, I'll try my dog-gonedest to make you happy. My uncle is very, very anxious to see you and the way he talks, he has fallen in love with you already.

What are you doing to-day, precious? Have the Friends been up to mon dear? Don't forget my love, to love mon dear write me & tell me how every thing is getting on & how Frieda is. I believe the ban on the Christmas is over.

Well, my sweet love, will close now, with all the love to my own sweetest, dearest, darling wife, and with lots of Kisses,

Ever lovingly & longingly your

Hubby.

Mr. Dazson will answer your letter Monday.
